UNIQUE INTERESTS

Computer Programming

Computers have been an interest of mine since high school, I started learning programming about four years ago. From a young age, I've always been one to take things apart (sometimes putting them back together) and that enthusiasm hasn't faded. Computers are used for everything imaginable today, I really only see them becoming more important and central to healthcare. For me, they provide a useful tool to implement new ideas and solve problems that would be impossible with human intellect alone. In this regard, I am self-driven and self-taught. I love picking up new skills (like L^AT_EX) and I actively program in the areas of bioinformatics and data. My GitHub can be found at <https://github.com/griffincalme> and associated blog at <https://griffincalme.github.io>.

Reading

Aside from medical & other scientific journal literature, I really like to read books about science, technology, philosophy, and mathematics. I've learned so much from books, it really changes your worldview when you understand how many things work and how they came to be. I've read 125+ books in these genres over the past few years, my Goodreads page can be found here <https://www.goodreads.com/user/show/59024006-griffin-calme>
